Attorney Craig H. Nelson authors article featured by American Bar Association Section of Business Law: “REGIONAL STRATEGIES: THE USE OF INTERLOCAL REVENUE SHARING AND COLLABORATION TO CREATE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT”

Senior Partner Craig H. Nelson of the Law Offices of Doyle & Nelson recently authored the article: “REGIONAL STRATEGIES: THE USE OF INTERLOCAL REVENUE SHARING AND COLLABORATION TO CREATE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT”, which is now being featured in the American Bar Association’s Spring 2009 Community Economic Development Newsletter.

The article may be found under the Community Development Committee section news at at <http://www.abanet.org/buslaw/newsletter/>

Attorney Nelson has been instrumental in organizing the Kennebec Regional Development Authority (KRDA), of which he is President. The KRDA is a regional development organization made up of twenty-four municipalities which are jointly investing in the development of FirstPark, a state-of-the-art technology based business park located in Oakland, Maine.

Craig is frequently called upon to consult and lecture on economic and business development and regionalization issues. His Augusta, Maine-based practice focuses on the areas of corporate, commercial, banking, real estate, healthcare, administrative law, and estate planning.
